

We proposed a self-design 3D encoder-decoder convolutional neural network to perform prostate segmentation in MR images. Besides, we introduced self attention and adversarial learning to the proposed method to further refine the prostate boundary.

As the paper is to be under blind review, details of this algorithms will appear in a future publication.